

This invention relates to a closed loop duplex communications system having at least two antennae at the forward link transmitter. A feedback channel from the forward link receiver to the forward link transmitter carries feedback information about the phase and magnitude

5